DE-ALCOHOLISED WINES
SOUTH AFRICA

{Lout' us} [Latin]: pure, elegant and sumptuous.

In 2017 Reg Holder of Holder Vineyard & Wines Ltd launched the first de-alcoholised wine in South Africa. He was on a mission to produce a non-alcoholic wine that would portray the beautiful complexity, elegance and finesse of a premium wine. As with all wine, the true heroes are the vineyards. By using selected sites that produce wines of high aromatic complexity and balance, they have produced a truly exceptional wine experience. Vegan.

Winemaking

The alcohol is removed via spinning cone technology at low temperature under vacuum. The initial phase is to first remove the flavour, set aside. Then the alcohol is removed and once done we can take the flavour back to the de-alcoholised wine. There is a significant volume loss during process, a portion of the alcohol water is then again put through the process to extract the water. And added back. This helps to fill out the palate and balance acidity. Normal winemaking practices are followed from here in preparation for bottling.
